- 2026 WJP Rule of Law Index® finds authoritarian practices have become entrenched
- Rising government interference and rollbacks in freedom of speech and participation demand urgent attention
- Argentina's score decreased, ranks 13 out of 32 regionally

WASHINGTON (October 21, 2026) – The global rule of law recession persists, according to the new WJP Rule of Law Index® 2026, released today by the World Justice Project (WJP). While fewer countries declined this year compared to last, the global balance remains deeply uneven—with a 62% decline continuing to outnumber improvements—including Argentina.

Argentina's overall rule of law score decreased by less than 1% in this year's Index. It ranks 64th out of 143 countries worldwide.

Regionally, Argentina ranks 13th out of 32 countries in Latin America and the Caribbean.* The region's top performer is Uruguay (ranked 22nd out of 143 globally), followed by Costa Rica and Barbados. The three countries with the lowest scores in the region are Nicaragua, Haiti, and Venezuela (143rd globally).

In the last year, 19 out of 32 countries declined in Latin America and the Caribbean. Of those 19 countries, 13 had also declined in the previous year.

Latin America and the Caribbean represent a significant bright spot, with half of the top ten global improvers (2025 to 2026) in the WJP Rule of Law Index originating from the region.

Brazil achieved the second-largest improvement (3.17%) globally over a three-year span (2023-2026), reinforcing that institutional momentum can shift following periods of strain.

Among upper-middle income countries, Argentina ranks 14th out of 44.

Argentina and Global trends

Authoritarianism is no longer an emerging trend—it has become entrenched: over 86% of countries have suffered a sustained five-year decline in at least one safeguard against authoritarian rule: constraints on government powers, open government, or fundamental rights. This includes Argentina.

Freedoms essential to civic space, public debate and government oversight are shrinking across most countries:

- "Freedom of opinion and expression" declined in 64% of countries, including Argentina.
- "Freedom of assembly and association" declined in 67% of countries, including Argentina.
- "Civic participation" declined in 65% of countries, including Argentina.

Across criminal and civil systems alike, undue executive pressure and interference have become the leading drivers of institutional decay. Civil justice weakened in 64% of countries and criminal justice in 58%, with improper government influence emerging as a central factor in both areas. Judiciaries are also losing ground to executive overreach more broadly: government powers limited by the judiciary fell in 63% of countries. This does not include Argentina.

However, civil justice is becoming more accessible, affordable, and equal:

- "Access and afford civil justice improved in 54%" of countries, including Argentina.
- "Civil justice is free of discrimination" improved in 52% of countries, including Argentina.

Index data shows that economic prosperity, price stability, and low credit risk cluster in countries with robust rule of law:

- GDP per capita: Countries with a GDP per capita above the world's average ($14,406) score 0.68 or higher in the WJP Rule of Law Index.
- Inflation: Countries with inflation rates lower than the median (3.23%) have an Index score of 0.60 or above.
- Sovereign credit ratings: Countries with an investment-grade sovereign credit rating (AAA to BBB) maintain Index scores of 0.66 or higher.

In 2026, Argentina's overall score is 0.54.
