

Founded by Dr. Mei Gechlik in February 2011, the China Guiding Cases Project (CGCP) has enabled legal experts to contribute to the evolution of Chinese case law through ongoing dialogue on China's "guiding cases."

Advised by approximately 40 leading experts and supported by a team of 60 volunteers around the world, the CGCP has, among other products, published:

- All guiding cases.
- English translations of all guiding cases. These translations employ a rigorously developed database of Chinese-English legal terminology.
- Commentaries, in English and Chinese, on the guiding cases and related topics written by judges, legal practitioners, and legal scholars.

Stanford Law School
China Guiding Cases Project
中国指导性案例项目

China's "guiding cases":

- Are selected by China's Supreme People's Court to serve as examples of competent adjudication.
- Are to be strictly followed by China's courts.

SPRING 2013 Lunch Series
On China

Other exciting events:

- Lunch Series on China, Spring 2013, Stanford University: the series featured five talks on law, policy, and governance.
- The 8th Annual European China Law Studies Association Conference, September 2013, Oxford University: CGCP leaders and our invited experts will discuss the impact and prospects of China's Guiding Cases System.

<https://cgc.law.stanford.edu/>

© 2013 Designed by Jacklyn Fang, CGCP Artist

