C R E D E N C I A L

Nº 152/2011

S.M. el Rey, accediendo a la petición que tan amablemente Le ha sido formulada, ha tenido a bien aceptar la del "WORLD JUSTICE FORUM", que se celebrará en Barcelona del 20 al 23 de junio próximo.

PRESIDENCIA DE HONOR

Lo que me complace participarle para su conocimiento y efectos.

PALACIO DE LA ZARZUELA, 29 de abril de 2011

EL JEFE DE LA CASA DE S.M. EL REY,

SEÑOR PRESIDENTE DEL WORLD JUSTICE PROJECT

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Estados Unidos)

WELCOME!

The rule of law is the foundation for communities of opportunity and equity. Multidisciplinary collaboration is the most effective way to advance the rule of law. These are the premises on which the World Justice Project (WJP) is based and it is here, at the World Justice Forum III in Barcelona, that these premises will be tested and realized.

In too many parts of the world women, youth, minorities, and the poor are not treated equally; the environment is disrespected; and governments and businesses are not held accountable for their actions.

Over the next few days, you will work with colleagues from some 100 countries and a wide variety of professional disciplines to design projects that will provide solutions to these and other ills confronting the world today.

In the coming months, after the Forum concludes, it will be up to you to implement these projects and to build a foundation for the rule of law which will allow justice, safety, health, education, and prosperity to flourish in communities around the world.

I look forward to working with you in this noble endeavor.

Sincerely,

About the World Justice Project

The World Justice Project (WJP) is an independent, non-profit organization working to advance the rule of law for the development of communities of opportunity and equity worldwide.

The WJP's multinational, multidisciplinary efforts are dedicated to stimulating government reforms that enhance the rule of law, developing practical programs in support of the rule of law at the community level, and increasing public awareness about the concept and practice of the rule of law.

The rule of law is essential to the work of all parts of society. It is the key to the promotion of political stability, economic opportunity, social progress and fundamental fairness and equity. Without the rule of law, women and children suffer atrocities, corrupt governments divert public resources needed for public works, and economic growth is stifled.

The World Justice Project works to advance the rule of law around through complementary and mutually reinforcing program areas: Mainstreaming, Rule of Law Index, and Scholarship.

Mainstreaming: Through action-oriented outreach meetings across the globe, the World Justice Forum, and the Opportunity Fund, the WJP helps integrate the rule of law into a broad array of disciplines.

WJP Rule of Law Index™: The Index is a robust, evolving methodology to measure the rule of law and is designed to provide governments, inter-governmental organizations, businesses, academics, and civil society with original data and practical information. It serves as a tool to plan targeted, effective legal reforms.

Scholarship: The WJP supports and generates original research that examines the contributions of the rule of law to various aspects of economic, political, and social development.

TOPICAL PANEL SESSIONSTrack One: THE RULE OF LAW AND UNDERGROUND ECONOMIES

This panel offers a key opportunity to address rule of law challenges in the particular context of underground economies. The discussion will center on the importance of building coherent, inclusive legal regimes in functional market economies that promote compliance with the formal rules for optimum economic outcomes.

The emphasis of the panel is on underground economies, a growing world phenomenon that refers to both legal activities, such as often found in service industries where taxes are not withheld and paid, and illegal activities, such as organized crime, drug trafficking, money laundering and extortion.

The principal rule of law issues discussed by panelists will include:

- > What are the roles of good governance and the rule of law in reducing the size of underground economies?*
- > What are the challenges in enforcing the rule of law in growing underground economies, especially those affecting labor rights of vulnerable groups?*

Track Two: RECONCILING THE RULE OF LAW WITH TRADITIONAL SYSTEMS OF JUSTICE

Panelists will debate whether traditional justice systems are the most effective means of preserving the rule of law in certain communities since they are home-grown, culturally appropriate, and embraced by the communities they serve. The panel will also compare the characteristics of these systems in all regions of the world, their linkages with formal justice systems, and their human rights implications. Panelists will identify opportunities and challenges, both for the preservation of traditional systems, and their co-existence with the formal ones.

The principal rule of law issues discussed by panelists will include:

- > What can be done to ensure that traditional justice systems comply with and preserve the fundamental requirements of the rule of law?*
- > Are formal and traditional systems of justice mutually exclusive, or can both systems be reconciled to embrace legal pluralism and improve the administration of justice, especially for vulnerable groups?*

tuesday 21stTrack Three: THE RULE OF LAW, THE ENVIRONMENT, AND PUBLIC HEALTH

Transcending various sectors, the rule of law plays a pivotal role, both nationally and internationally, in promoting a green economy, environmental protection, and public health.

The principal rule of law issues discussed by panelists will include:

- > What is the role of the rule of law in preserving natural resources to safeguard the quality of lives and sustainability of economic growth?*
- > What are the challenges in enforcing energy efficiency and renewable resources legislation?*
- > What effect does the rule of law and environmental protection have on public health?*

tuesday 21st

Track Four: HUMAN TRAFFICKING AND THE RULE OF LAW

Trafficking in persons is one of the most prevalent crimes involving severe human rights violations. The faces of human trafficking are many, since it is the third most profitable criminal activity in the world after illegal drugs and arms trafficking. The impacts of this modern-day slavery are devastating, extending beyond individual victims and undermining the safety, security, and law of all nations it plagues. In particular, the unjust exploitation of women and children through trafficking is a direct consequence of the absence of the rule of law.

Promoting cooperation across borders and disciplines, panelists will: discuss existing national, regional, and international laws to combat human trafficking; encourage states to promote effective protection for victims and prosecution of perpetrators (criminalization of trafficking); and showcase efforts from around the world which help to prevent this phenomenon from continuing.

Panel: THE RULE OF LAW AND FAIR ELECTIONS

The recent uprisings in the Middle East and North Africa region serve as a stark reminder on the importance of reinforcing the rule of law as a critical element in developing fairer election systems and facilitating the transition to political liberalization.

wednesday 22nd

The principal rule of law questions discussed by panelists will include:

- > What are possible ways in which the rule of law can enhance public participation through fair elections (i.e.: civil society monitoring and engagement and public and civic education)?
- > How can the role of international observers in the electoral process be developed to promote transparency at the national level without encroaching on national sovereignty?

wednesday 22ndTrack Six: FREEDOM OF THE PRESS, ACCESS TO INFORMATION AND THE RULE OF LAW

Access to information is an essential element of good governance, enabling the public sector and civil society to collaborate in promoting accountability. As a critical conduit of information, a free and responsible press is a core component in transparency efforts which hold the government, civil society, and the private sector accountable for their actions. Numerous parts of the world, however, suffer from weak access to information and freedom of the press in law or in practice and, as a result, the public is unable to utilize these mechanisms to build more just societies.

The principal rule of law issues discussed by panelists will include:

- > How is the rule of law fundamental to a free press?*
- > What is the importance of the internet and other digital media technologies in facilitating access to public information?*
- > How can partnerships be built between civil society, technology experts, government, the private sector, educational institutions, and citizens to educate individuals about how information can work to foster a society which encourages innovation, informs individuals of their legal rights, and empowers them to access these rights?*
- > How can access to public information infringe on national security?*

Track Seven: EDUCATING YOUTH ABOUT THE RULE OF LAW

The United Nations declared August 2010 - August 2011 International Year of Youth. There is an overwhelming consensus that the voices of youth are vital to achieving positive change and influencing the decision-making process, at the local and international levels. Building economic prosperity, maintaining good governance practices, and developing a strong civil society are all hampered when a nation's young people are marginalized.

With each UN member state encouraged to dedicate the year to youth, this panel presents a timely opportunity to stress the importance of engaged and well-educated youth to advancing the rule of law, under the context of a changing and interconnected global environment.

wednesday 22ndTrack Eight: ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT, BUSINESS GROWTH AND THE RULE OF LAW

Barriers continue to prevent the private sector from achieving its tremendous potential to stimulate economic growth, to lift individuals out of poverty, and to champion reforms both within and outside the business community. Uneven enforcement of business regulations and a lack of knowledge of or ability to access key legal business information create an environment of uncertainty and increase the susceptibility of the private sector to pressures from unscrupulous government regulators and inspectors.

Furthermore, the growth of international protection mechanisms - such as bilateral and multilateral investment treaties that provide for the internationalization of regulations - generate important issues for business rights that can only be enforced under an operating rule of law system. This panel offers a key opportunity to address the rule of law in the particular context of global business challenges.

The principal rule of law issues discussed by panelists will include:

- > What is the role of the rule of law for developing legal certainty and efficiency for corporate stability?*
- > How can legal environments be established for local and international requirements to ensure expeditious adjudication of business cases as well as enforcement of corporate human rights standards?*

Participant Guidelines: Project Design Sessions

Thank you for agreeing to participate in the World Justice Forum III. We look forward to welcoming you to Barcelona. Forum III is different from many international conferences and events you may have attended: rather than focusing solely on high profile speeches and networking, our primary goal is to generate new multidisciplinary projects which advance the rule of law in communities around the world. As a Forum III participant, you are integral to the development and implementation of these projects. By attending, you accept responsibility for leading or supporting the implementation of at least one project in the months after the Forum.

Session Structure

Project design sessions will be organized for each of ten topics, which relate directly to plenary or concurrent topical panels. Each session will have approximately 35-45 participants representing numerous countries and professional disciplines and will meet the afternoon of June 21 (two hours), the morning of June 22 (two hours), and the morning of June 23 (two and a half hours). Participants are expected to attend the same project design session each day of the Forum. Session participants will select 2-4 sub-topics and will divide into related sub-groups to focus discussions on developing concrete projects. Each sub-group will be expected to develop 3-5 projects. Project design sessions will be facilitated by a moderator, who will be assisted by a rapporteur (note-taker) and a WJP resource person who is familiar with the WJP mission. Sub-group discussion will be chosen from among the sub-group and will agree to undertake the below responsibilities for the sub-group.

The Responsibilities of Your Moderator

Design session moderators are a key component to a successful project design session and are essential to ensuring that concrete and multi-disciplinary projects are generated in the limited time allotted on June 21-23. Moderators are chosen in advance by the WJP based upon their experience and ability to facilitate these sessions. Sub-group moderators will be selected from among sub-group participants once sub-topics are selected.

Your moderator will:

1. Facilitate discussion on the Forum III blog before the conference starts, including assessing possible sub-group topics and posting relevant news, reports, and best practices (see the next session for further information on the Forum blog).
2. Set timetables for considering each of the group project design session objectives, and encourage consensus in concluding each objective.
3. Ensure that all participants have an equal opportunity to speak and that no individual dominates the conversation.
4. Encourage participants to be specific in the development of each element of a practical project. For each project, the following should be identified: the intended outcomes; project timeline; resources, including funding, required (and likely sources); and the project leader and key collaborators.

Your moderator will be assisted by a rapporteur (note-taker) and a WJP resource person. The WJP resource person will be familiar with the WJP methodology and can help answer any process questions that might arise. The rapporteur will capture the key points from your group's discussion, though he/she will not be responsible for recording sub-group discussions.

Project Design Session Process

June 21, 2011

- > Plenary Discussions and Presentations
 - ◆ Plenary panels and concurrent topical discussions, proceeding the first project design session, will feature an introduction to the WJP and provide context and best practices to inform discussions within project design sessions.¹

- ◆ An orientation meeting by discipline will reinforce the importance of rule of law to each professional discipline
 - ◆ A project design introduction will initiate the project development at Forum III and include the experiences of individuals who have previously implemented projects incubated at WJP events.
- First Project Design Session (120 minutes)
- ◆ Session Goals
 - ~ Determine sub-group topics and form sub-groups.
 - ~ Hold initial sub-group meetings.
 - ◆ Session Process – Topical Groups (30-45 minutes)
 - ~ Discuss possible sub-topics, which address urgent rule of law issues where there is an opportunity to achieve impact. It may be helpful to consider questions such as: What issues does the group believe merit further discussion? What topics are missing?
 - ~ Select 2-4 sub-group topics for which several appropriate projects are likely to be developed.
 - ◆ Session Process – Sub-Groups (75-90 minutes)
 - ~ Divide into sub-groups based on topics selected. There should be 2-4 groups of 10-20 persons with a mix of countries and professions represented in each.

- ~ Sub-groups should select a moderator from among the group's members. The sub-group moderator will serve in this role for the duration of the Forum.
- ~ Discussion should focus first on the ideal outcome or desired change: What do you hope to achieve irrespective of constraints? The group should next consider probable scenarios: What do you believe is likely to happen? Discussion should ultimately lead to how to merge the ideal with the probable and achievable.
- ~ Sub-groups will be provided with a flipchart and markers for recording key discussion points. Sub-groups will also receive a project template, to be completed by project leaders in the second and third project design sessions below.

June 22, 2011

> Plenary Discussions and Presentations

- ◆ A presentation on the WJP Rule of Law Index will precede the second project design session. You are encouraged to think creatively about utilizing the Index as a part of your project design.
- ◆ The second project design sessions will be followed by a plenary as well as four concurrent topical discussions and a special plenary discussion.

> Second Project Design Session (120 minutes)

◆ Session Goals

- ~ Within sub-groups, utilize discussion from first session to develop concrete project ideas.

- ~ Present project ideas to the full topical group.
- ~ Seek feedback from topical group to incorporate into third project design session.

◆ Session Process – Sub-Groups (60 minutes)

- ~ Utilize discussions from first project design session to develop concrete projects to advance the rule of law.
- ~ Create rough outlines for 3-5 project ideas which evolve the previous day's discussion on where the ideal and the probable merge.

◆ Session Process – Topical Groups (60 minutes)

- ~ Each sub-group will have 4-5 minutes to present their group's ideas, allowing an equal amount of time for the larger group to ask questions and provide feedback.

June 23, 2011

> Plenary Presentations and Discussions

- ◆ A keynote address will precede the third and final project design session.
- ◆ The final project design session will be followed by project design session reports to the plenary, a concluding keynote address, and concluding remarks.

> Third Project Design Session (150 minutes)

- ◆ Session Goals

- ~ Finalize project ideas, including determining roles and responsibilities for all sub-group participants.
- ~ Complete project template provided by WJP for each separate project.
- ~ Prepare presentations to the plenary.
- ◆ Session Process – Sub-Groups (105 minutes)
 - ~ Incorporate comments and suggestions from the topical group into project ideas.
 - ~ Provide greater detail on projects, including who plans to do what, timeframe, key stakeholders, resources required, etc.
 - ~ Revise project template.
- ◆ Session Process – Topical-Groups (45 minutes)
 - ~ Determine which project ideas will be presented to the plenary.
 - ~ Fill out PowerPoint slide template provided by the WJP (3-5 slides per topical group).
 - ~ Select the presenter, who will have five minutes to summarize projects to the plenary.
- > Before the Conclusion of the Forum on June 23
 - ◆ Rapporteurs should submit written reports from topical groups to the WJP.
 - ◆ Project leaders should submit project templates to the WJP.

After the Conference

Within two weeks of Forum III, the WJP will distribute the rapporteur's report as well as individual project templates to all topical group participants for suggested comments and revisions. Moreover, the WJP will include information on projects developed in the Forum III final report and will follow-up with project leaders on a regular basis, assisting where possible. Progress on projects incubated at the Forum will be posted to the Forum website and disseminated throughout the WJP network.

WJP Opportunity Fund

The WJP's Opportunity Fund provides financial and technical assistance to programs spanning over 20 countries on four continents and more than 17 professional disciplines.

It supports rule of law initiatives all over the world, including: combatting corruption in engineering in Tunisia; ensuring compliance of environmental law in the Philippines; and using the media to improve women's access to justice in Sierra Leone.

WJP Scholarship

The WJP supports and generates original research that examines the contributions of the rule of law to various aspects of economic, political, and social development and sheds new light on how to strengthen the rule of law.

The WJP has produced two scholarly volumes published by Routledge Press, Global Perspectives on the Rule of Law and Marginalized Communities and Access to Justice.
