- 2026 WJP Rule of Law Index® finds authoritarian practices have become entrenched
- Rising government interference and rollbacks in freedom of speech and participation demand urgent attention
- Sweden's score increased, ranks 4 out of 31 regionally

WASHINGTON (October 21, 2026) – The global rule of law recession persists, according to the new WJP Rule of Law Index® 2026, released today by the World Justice Project (WJP). While fewer countries declined this year compared to last, the global balance remains deeply uneven—with a 62% decline continuing to outnumber improvements.

However, Sweden is among the minority of countries to see its Rule of Law Index score increase this year.

Sweden's overall rule of law score increased by less than 1% in this year's Index. It ranks 4th out of 143 countries worldwide.

Regionally, Sweden ranks 4th out of 31 countries in the European Union, European Free Trade Association, and North America.* The region's top performer is Denmark (ranked 1st out of 143 globally), followed by Norway and Finland. The three countries with the lowest scores in the region are Greece, Bulgaria, and Hungary (78th globally).

In the last year, 17 out of 31 countries declined in the European Union, European Free Trade Association, and North America. Of those 17 countries, 15 had also declined in the previous year.

Canada, the UK, and most of the EU have remained largely stable, neither meaningfully improving nor declining.

While it is too early to tell for Hungary, Poland leads global recovery: Poland recorded the world's largest three-year improvement, rising 4.22% since 2023 as democratic checks and institutional safeguards began to recover.

Among high income countries, Sweden ranks 4th out of 51.

Sweden and Global trends

Authoritarianism is no longer an emerging trend—it has become entrenched: over 86% of countries have suffered a sustained five-year decline in at least one safeguard against authoritarian rule: constraints on government powers, open government, or fundamental rights. This does not include Sweden.

Freedoms essential to civic space, public debate and government oversight are shrinking across most countries:

- "Freedom of opinion and expression" declined in 64% of countries, but not in Sweden.
- "Freedom of assembly and association" declined in 67% of countries, but not in Sweden.
- "Civic participation" declined in 65% of countries, but not in Sweden.

Across criminal and civil systems alike, undue executive pressure and interference have become the leading drivers of institutional decay. Civil justice weakened in 64% of countries and criminal justice in 58%, with improper government influence emerging as a central factor in both areas. Judiciaries are also losing ground to executive overreach more broadly: government powers limited by the judiciary fell in 63% of countries. This does not include Sweden.

However, civil justice is becoming more accessible, affordable, and equal:

- "Access and afford civil justice improved in 54%" of countries, but not in Sweden.
- "Civil justice is free of discrimination" improved in 52% of countries, including Sweden.

Index data shows that economic prosperity, price stability, and low credit risk cluster in countries with robust rule of law:

- GDP per capita: Countries with a GDP per capita above the world's average ($14,406) score 0.68 or higher in the WJP Rule of Law Index.
- Inflation: Countries with inflation rates lower than the median (3.23%) have an Index score of 0.60 or above.
- Sovereign credit ratings: Countries with an investment-grade sovereign credit rating (AAA to BBB) maintain Index scores of 0.66 or higher.

In 2026, Sweden's overall score is 0.86.
