The United Arab Emirates Ranks 37 out of 143 in the WJP Rule of Law Index

- 2025 WJP Rule of Law Index® finds the rule of law recession accelerates as authoritarian trends expand
- Decline in judicial independence and shrinking civic space signal heightened risk to democracy worldwide
- The United Arab Emirates' score increased, ranks 1 out of 10 regionally

WASHINGTON (October 28, 2025) – The global rule of law recession has accelerated again, according to the new *WJP Rule of Law Index*® 2025. A stark 68% of countries declined in their rule of law in 2025, compared to 57% in the previous year.

However, the United Arab Emirates is among the minority of countries to see its rule of law score increase this year.

The United Arab Emirates' overall rule of law score increased by less than 1% in this year's Index. It ranks 37th out of 143 countries worldwide.

Regionally, the United Arab Emirates ranks 1st out of 10 countries in the Middle East and North Africa.* The region's top performer is the United Arab Emirates (ranked 37th out of 143 globally), followed by Qatar and Kuwait. The three countries with the lowest scores in the region are Lebanon, Iran, and Egypt (135th globally).

In the last year, 5 out of 10 countries declined in the Middle East and North Africa. Of those 5 countries, 3 had also declined in the previous year.

Among high income countries, the United Arab Emirates ranks 37th out of 51.**

The United Arab Emirates and global trends

An expansion of authoritarian trends is the primary force behind the rule of law recession, with deep declines in factors measuring Constraints on Government Powers, Open Government, and Fundamental Rights.

The integrity of checks and balances has also been seriously weakened, but not in the United Arab Emirates.

A characteristic of this accelerated rule of law recession is a shrinking civic space. Freedoms crucial for public discourse and government oversight—measured under the Open Government and Fundamental Rights factors—saw widespread erosion. The United Arab Emirates is among the over 70% of countries experiencing a shrinking of civic freedoms:

- “Freedom of opinion and expression” declined in 73% of countries, including the United Arab Emirates.
- “Freedom of assembly and association” declined in 72% of countries, but not in the United Arab Emirates.
- “Civic participation” declined in 71% of countries, including the United Arab Emirates.

The Index shows that judiciaries are losing ground to executive overreach, with rising political interference across justice systems. Indicators measuring whether the judiciary limits executive power and whether civil and criminal justice are free from improper government influence declined in 61%, 67%, and 62% of countries, respectively. This includes the United Arab Emirates.

More broadly, civil justice weakened in 68% of countries, but not in the United Arab Emirates. This decline reflects longer delays, less effective alternatives to court (such as mediation), and greater government interference.

Global rankings

Globally, the top-ranked country in the 2025 WJP Rule of Law Index is Denmark, followed by Norway, Finland, Sweden, and New Zealand. The country with the lowest score is Venezuela, followed by Afghanistan, Cambodia, Haiti, and Nicaragua.
